

Guide for employees and self-employed – reportable superannuation contributions

---

How reportable superannuation contributions work

Your reportable super contributions are the sum of:

- any personal deductible contributions you make
- any reportable employer super contributions your employer makes for you.

Your reportable super contributions affect the income tests for some tax offsets, deductions, concessions, the Medicare levy surcharge, and certain government benefits and obligations.

Find out about:

- Personal deductible contributions \(?anchor=Personaldeductiblecontributions#Personaldeductiblecontributions\)
- Reportable employer super contributions \(?anchor=Reportableemployersupercontributions#Reportableemployersupercontributions\)
- What you need to do \(?anchor=Whatyouneedtodo#Whatyouneedtodo\)
- More information \(?anchor=Moreinformation#Moreinformation\)

Last modified: 06 Jan 2017

QC 22119

Our commitment to you

We are committed to providing you with accurate, consistent and clear information to help you understand your rights and entitlements and meet your obligations.

If you follow our information and it turns out to be incorrect, or it is misleading and you make a mistake as a result, we will take that into account when determining what action, if any, we should take.

Some of the information on this website applies to a specific financial year. This is clearly marked. Make sure you have the information for the right year before making decisions based on that information.

If you feel that our information does not fully cover your circumstances, or you are unsure how it applies to you, contact us or seek professional advice.

Copyright notice

© Australian Taxation Office for the Commonwealth of Australia

You are free to copy, adapt, modify, transmit and distribute this material as you wish (but not in any way that suggests the ATO or the Commonwealth endorses you or any of your services or products).